Rhiannon's Reading Recommendations

📖 Week seven 📖

Mr Salt's Recommendations!

For the book I'd recommend to read I'd have to pick an autobiography called Aussie Grit: My Formula One journey by Mark Webber. In this book, Mark Webber outlines the struggles and obstacles he had to overcome in order to reach the pinnacle of motorsport. Formula one can be a sport where money talks more than talent but Mark Webber ensured that he remained at the pinnacle of Motor sport for 11 years through his sheer determination, hard work and motivation to be on e of the best. Trying to think back to when I used to read regularly when I was a child, it takes me back to around the age of 10/11. There was a popular range of children's books called Goosebumps. These were 'scary' stories written by RL Stine and there was a wide range of them available. Me and my friends would buy a different title each and then swap it once we were done. Titles that I can recall are 'Say cheese and die', 'it came from beneath the sink' and 'night of the living dummy'.

Miss Davies' Recommendations

As a child it has to be the Twits by Roald Dahl (a very funny book) and a maths one Humble Pi (A Comedy of Maths Errors) by Matt Parker

Miss Allen's Recommendations!

My childhood recommendation would have to be The Illustrated Mum by Jacqueline Wilson. It's a heart-warming (but at times sad) story of a young girl called Dolphin who struggles to manage the demands of school and well as her wild mum, Marigold and sister Star. I'd definitely read it now if I had the time as it's truly a story that spans the generations. For my English recommendation I would chose Abomination by Robert Swindells (not that one!) It's from the same author as Stone Cold which you possibly read in Y9 and deals with the chilling reality of a hidden family secret. I won't give too much away but it will definitely keep you on the edge on your seat!

It is available on the Sora app!

#CrucialKnowledge

Teach the teacher has been launched to allow you to teach and test your teachers on the crucial knowledge you have learnt.

Fill in the postcard and email it any teacher to earn yourself an event log and a ticket in the weekly lucky dip draw.

What was the crucial knowledge last week?

Climate change to save Earth.

Why not support Earth Hour and Switch off your lights for an hour? The UK is amongst the top dozen of 219 countries when it comes to the amount of electricity used per person. It takes a substantial amount of water to create energy. Water is used to cool steam electric power plants- fueled by coal, oil, natural gas and nuclear power - and is required to generate hydropower.

What can you do for 1 hour to help climate change?

National Bed Month, 22nd World Water day, 23rd World Meteorological day, 27th Earth Hour

Have an idea, event or news that you want to share in next week's edition please email
