THIS PHOTO SHOWS THAT IT THAT THERE IS A PHOTO OF A WOMAN AND PUT IT IN A OLD LETTER PAPER AND SO I DID THAT. I FIRST CHOSE A RANDOM GOOD PHOTO AND I CHOSE ANOTHER PHOTO SO I CAN TAKE OFF THE EYE AND PUT IT AT THE OTHER PHOTO. AND THEN I GOT ANOTHER EYE AND PUT IT ON THE ORIGINAL PHOTO IN THE OTHER EYE AND I FOUND A RANDOM OLD WRITING PAPER AND PUT THE PHOTO ON THE OLD WRITING PAPER. AND CUT SOME OF THE ORIGINAL PHOTO AND PUT IT ON THE OLD WRITING PAPER. AND I NOW I DID THE EXACT THING TO THE ORIGINAL PHOTO I HAD TO DO NOTHING JUST GET A OLD WRITING PAPER AND CUT A GIRL PICTURE AND ANOTHER GIRLS PICTURE EYE AND PUT IT ON THE OLD WRITING PAPER.

Astro Rules

Only pupils playing football should be on the astro – if not playing football, pupils must be outside the astro fence.

Please be aware that if there are too many pupils on a pitch, staff will stop play and reduce the numbers by moving some to another pitch.

Before footballs are handed out, the goals should be placed on the lines for each pitch and the nets pulled across.

Rules for games on the astro:

- Physical contact during the games should be minimal – no slide tackling, shoulder barging, pushing, etc.
- Games should be played to the lines and the dividing net and games should restart with goal, corner kicks and throw ins
- There should be no food eaten on the astro and pupils should not leave litter
- The whistle to end the game should be blown five minutes before the end of lunchtime and pupils should stop the game and leave the astro immediately
- There should be no:
 - football chanting
 - play fighting

The On Call system should be used where necessary

QUIZ!

‘I am not an artist. Just someone who paints’

Is this painting worth £7.8m? LS Lowry’s famous picture of crowds descending on a football match has been sold for an eye-watering sum. Some feel the money could have been better spent.

As the auctioneer banged his gavel, art lovers and football fans alike breathed a sigh of relief. On Wednesday evening, at Christie’s auction house in London, LS Lowry’s painting Going To The Match sold for £7.8m to a Salford museum.

Going To The Match has been called “the finest football painting ever”, although Lowry only shows a tiny triangle of the pitch itself.

Painted in 1953, Lowry’s picture depicts a crowd of fans descending on the Bolton Wanderers¹ stadium before a football game. The sky is heavy with smog. The mills, factories and gas works of Manchester lurk in the background, reminding us that match day is a temporary relief from a life of tough labour.²

For over two decades, it held pride of place at The Lowry, an art centre named after the painter. It was loaned to the museum by the Players Foundation, a charity supporting footballers. When news of the sale broke, Lowry’s admirers were worried the painting might be sold to a private collector and removed from public view.

With the help of a donation, it was purchased by The Lowry and will remain in the museum. Mayor of Salford Paul Dennett said: “I am delighted our campaign to save this critical and important painting has successfully resulted in The Lowry securing it... for residents and visitors to our great city.”

Selling art for vast sums of money also degrades the artwork, some say. The art market³ turns paintings into commodities, the same category as a pencil or pint of milk. Art critic Barbara Rose has compared art sold at auctions to “pieces of meat”. Instead, great art should be considered priceless.

Is this painting worth £7.8m?

Price match

Lowry himself would have been shocked by the price. For almost forty years, he worked as a rent collector by day and painted in the evening. When he died in 1988 he left an estate valued at £298,459, far short of the prices his works now command.

Recently his paintings have shot up in value. In 2007, Good Friday, Daisy Nook (1946) sold for £3.8m. In 2011, The Football Match (1949) and Piccadilly Circus (1960) both went for £5.6m. Going To The Match has set a new record.

For many of Lowry’s admirers, these prices reflect the significance of his art. Lowry was a distinctive, one-off genius. His art is admired by millions of people. And Going To The Match is one of his masterpieces. It makes perfect sense that it has sold for such a high price, proving that his work remains important and relevant.

Lowry’s art is especially valuable because it offers a rare document of a place and time in modern history. As British art specialist Alice Murray says: “It’s hard to think of many artists who dared take on the great industrial progress of the 20th Century, let alone paint it so compellingly.” The painting is a window into the past.

Others wonder if the money could be better spent elsewhere. In Britain, over 14.5 million people are currently living in poverty. The cost of living crisis is expected to increase this sum. In a difficult time, almost £8m for a single painting looks decadent.

Yes: Go to Salford. Look at Lowry’s painting. See his brushstrokes, his figures, the atmosphere of excitement he creates. £7.8m was a price worth paying to keep the painting for public view.

No: In a tough economic climate, spending millions on a picture seems misguided. The painting may have been saved for the public. But will many of the public be able to afford to visit the picture?

Or... You cannot truly put a price on art. The art market tries to in order to profit from the work of artists. But an encounter with a great painting is in a different category of experience.

World Freedom Day 9/11/2024 (Freedom)
 1. The power or right to act, speak or think as one wants.
 2. The state of not being imprisoned or enslaved.

World Freedom Day 2024 is a global observance that commemorates the fall of the Berlin Wall (9/11/1989) and celebrates the principles of freedom, democracy, and human rights.

World Freedom Day was at first primarily a United States led observance, began in 2001 by the then US President George W Bush and since endorsed by subsequent American Presidents.
 Judgements of whether freedom exists in a particular country are relative but arguably the inhabitants of less than half of the countries in the world (84 of 195) enjoy freedom, democracy and human rights.

In the United States World Freedom Day was inaugurated by a US president from the Republican party to promote the idea of the victory of an American way of life over Communism, as practised by the then Soviet Union. This aspect continues to be promoted within the wider context of Worldwide freedoms, sometimes depending on the political views of the US president in power at the time.

Worldwide, Freedom Days and alternative World Freedom Days are also celebrated in other countries but fall on a variety of other dates and celebrate a number of different types of events associated with Freedom.

World Freedom Day on 23 January in Taiwan and South Korea to mark the return of ex-communist war prisoners of the Korean War (1950-53).
 Freedom Day in South Africa on 27 April, to celebrate the anniversary of the first general election in South Africa after the end of apartheid in 1994.

The UK has no official date designated as Freedom Day. Perhaps because Britons overwhelmingly believe that the UK is a free country, according to the Centre for Policy Studies. Two informal dates sometimes referred to as Freedom Day but not widely known are;
 19th July 2021 when the last remaining social contact restrictions due to Covid 19 were repealed.
 25th March- the date of the passage of the Slave Trade Act in 1807 in the UK Parliament which prohibited the buying and selling of enslaved people within the British Empire.
