Over the past few weeks a number of pupils in year 7, 8 & 9 have represented the school in rugby fixtures against St John Fisher at Newcastle Staffs RFC. The first fixture was for year 8/9 and CCSC won convincingly with the final score ending up 25-10. It was great to see the efforts the boys have put in during training sessions paying off. Player of the day was Marcel Szatanek.

Next up was the year 7 boys who again showed some excellent play and skills learnt at training, however unfortunately SJF scored a last minute try to win 35 - 30. Players of the day were Blake Christer and Logan Tegg. Well done to all of those involved and we look forward to some more tournaments next year.

Good Bye Y11 you will be missed Miss Allen

All big bags and fluffy hair
To giant year elevens
Walking around without a care

For four years I've watched you grow and change
Wiped your tears and tied your laces
I've charged your iPads, saved your coats
Got to know all 178 of your faces

You've tested my patience daily
Made my hair turn grey
In fact, you've made me question my career
Each and every day

But secretly, I've loved it all
Each and every part
Of helping and supporting you
You've warmed my cold, dead heart

And as you leave and say goodbye
I think it's time to say
That even though you won't be here
I'll think of you each day

So, as you go into the world
My parting words are these
Be proud of who you are
Don't ever change, please

Do be good and try your best
Use your manners, don't be late
Stay in touch, don't fall out!
Remember this and you'll do great

Good luck with where life takes you
You deserve success and more
And though you're ready to fly the nest
Remember you're always welcome at my door

Dubious a-peel of 'edible masterpieces'

<https://www.theguardian.com/artanddesign/2022/jul/18/dubious-a-peel-of-edible-masterpieces> 18 July 2022

It is a banana. But is it art? In the long history of human creativity, works of great genius have been made out of tin cans, bricks, beds and human blood. So why not fruit?

It is a banana. But is it art? In the long history of human creativity, works of great genius have been made out of tin cans, bricks, beds and human blood. So why not fruit?

Anna Chojnicka was in her home in London when she had the idea: "I started to doodle on a banana".

The Londoner was bored and isolating at home when she noticed that banana skin changes colour when you press down on it. So, she picked up a seam ripper and began to draw.

Since then, a hobby has turned into a craft. Chojnicka has bruised hundreds of bananas. They depict flowers, rabbits and goldfish. She has made portraits of Adele and Boris Johnson. One even recreates the Mona Lisa. Chojnicka's pictures have brought her 15,000 Instagram followers.

Art used to follow strict rules. It meant paintings, sculptures and fine sketches. But ever since Marcel Duchamp placed a urinal in a gallery in 1917, artists have used almost everything.

Andy Warhol framed soup cans. Carl Andre arranged piles of bricks. Tracy Emin put her bed in a gallery.

The materials have been varied, too. Piero Manzoni used rabbit fur, Marcel Broodthaers used mussels and Dieter Roth used cheese and chocolate. Chris Ofili sticks elephant dung to his paintings. Judy Chicago makes smoke sculptures. Tomas Saraceno uses living spiders and their webs.

Some have taken things to extremes. Damien Hirst created art from dead animals and living insects. Carolee Schneemann rolled around in raw meat. Mark Quinn sculpted a self-portrait using his own blood. Wim Delvoye even tattooed a model's body as a "human canvas". When the model dies, his skin will be removed and framed.

Chojnicka is not even the first person to make art out of bananas. At Art Basel in 2019, sculptor Maurizio Cattelan taped a banana to a wall. It had a $120,000 price tag. One day, a passerby ate it and called it performance art.

Some believe that this sort of openness should be celebrated. Art was once exclusive: only those with very specific talents and training were able to create it. Now, everyone can be an artist. This makes art exciting. It also makes it diverse... like social media itself.

For some, art is anything that engages our mind and senses, whatever the medium. As Marshall McLuhan said: "Art is anything you can get away with." In this view, Chojnicka's bananas are certainly art. Whether they are good art is a different question.

Others strongly disagree. Real art is rare and special. It takes remarkable skill to create. Only Michelangelo could paint the Sistine Chapel. Anyone can doodle on a banana – never mind tape one to a wall.

The critic Brian Sewell wrote: "I don't know what art is, but I know what it isn't. And it isn't someone walking around with a salmon on his shoulder."

The definition of art has always been open to interpretation. For some, art is about beauty. Others care more about its message.

Art has also expanded to mediums like sound, performances and data. As the number of things called artworks grows, the debate over what makes real art is becoming more complex than ever before.

But is it art?

Gone bananas

Yes: Robert Rauschenberg said: "The artist's job is to be a witness to his time in history." Born from lockdown boredom and covered in celebrities, Chojnicka's odd assortment of celebrities, animals and household objects are just empty images. They say nothing at all.

No: Art has to have a message or help us view the world in a new light. Chojnicka's odd assortment of celebrities, animals and household objects are just empty images. They say nothing at all.

Or...? Art is subjective. What one person regards as a masterpiece, others might view with indifference or dislike. Chojnicka's banana can be both art and not art, depending on who is looking at them.

Six steps to discovery

1. How do you feel about this story? - What was the last artwork you saw? How did it make you feel? Did it make you think of anything you had not thought about before?
2. What questions do you have? - For example: Who gets to determine what is and is not art? Can anyone be an artist? Is the best art always original?
3. What are the main knowns and unknowns? - The definition of art has grown hugely in the past century. Artworks used to be physical objects created by an artist's hands. Now art encompasses sound, light, performance, digital files and much more. It is unknown whether art will continue to swell in the future, or whether it will divide into separate disciplines.
4. What is your view? - Imagine your artwork has been given bad reviews. How would you react? Would you brush off the comments or change your art?
5. What do others think? - You can save one artwork from destruction. As a group, take it in turns to argue for your chosen artwork and explain why it should be saved.
6. What do you think might happen next? - The year is 2065 and you are opening an art gallery. Draw a picture of the first piece of art you will display.

Some people say

- "Art is the lie that enables us to realise the truth."
- Pablo Picasso (1881 – 1973), Spanish artist often considered the most important painter of the 20th Century
- "In any art you're allowed to steal anything if you can make it better."
- Ernest Hemingway (1899 – 1961), American novelist famous for his macho lifestyle

Their first kit, worn for an international friendly against France in 1910, was all-white - but only because the country's football federation had yet to decide on an official colour.

The real reason behind the wearing of the colour blue, as per multiple sources, is to honour the Italian House of Savoy, the country's Royal Family, which was in place when Italy was unified back in 1861.

The future of the Royal Family was the subject of a constitutional referendum after World War II, and it was succeeded by the Italian Republic in 1946.

Why the odds are in France's favour for Euro 2024

France are heavily tipped to win Euro 2024 - but it's not just because their star-studded team features the likes of Kylian Mbappe. The colour of their kit could also help power Les Bleus to success.

Get Rhythm

(21st Summer Solstice/World Music Day)
(Week beginning 17th June 2024)

Rhythm	In its most general sense rhythm (from the Greek rythmos meaning a regularly recurring motion or flow) is an ordered alternation of contrasting elements or parts.
In Music	Rhythm is a pattern of sounds of different length. The length of a sound is called the duration. A pattern of sounds of different duration can make different rhythms. Regular- elements repeated exactly and evenly. Progressive- elements changed slightly when repeated Flowing- suggesting movement by irregular repetition of elements.	<table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th>Symbol</th> <th>Name</th> <th>Number per measure (4/4)</th> <th>Rest</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td></td> <td>whole note</td> <td>1 per measure</td> <td></td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>half note</td> <td>2 per measure</td> <td></td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>quarter note</td> <td>4 per measure</td> <td></td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>eighth note</td> <td>8 per measure</td> <td></td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>sixteenth note</td> <td>16 per measure</td> <td></td> </tr> </tbody> </table>		Symbol	Name	Number per measure (4/4)	Rest		whole note	1 per measure			half note	2 per measure			quarter note	4 per measure			eighth note	8 per measure			sixteenth note	16 per measure
Symbol	Name	Number per measure (4/4)	Rest
	whole note	1 per measure
	half note	2 per measure
	quarter note	4 per measure
	eighth note	8 per measure
	sixteenth note	16 per measure
In Poetry and Art	The repetition of sounds in poetry can give a sense of rhythm to the words. When poets use rhyme in regular places in their poems, this is called a rhyme scheme. Rhythm in art and design refers to a relationship between elements that creates a sense of harmony. It can be presented in patterns, relationships between colours and shapes and in repetition of lines and forms. (Such as in the white lettering, "mirroring" the moon, in the diagram below).	Shakespeare's Sonnet 18 (part). Shall I compare thee to a summers day? A Thou art more lovely and more temperate B Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May A And summers lease hath all too short a date B This section of the sonnet has a rhyme scheme of ABAB
In Science and Nature	It takes about 24 hours for the Earth to complete one rotation. This is the most significant biorhythm for all organic (carbon based) life forms and is known as the circadian rhythm. (From the Latin circa meaning approximately and dies meaning day). This sets the pace for the biological processes and behaviours that occur at regular intervals in all animals and plants. The diagram opposite shows some of the effects of circadian rhythm on the biochemistry of the human body. There are natural rhythms with much longer cycles such as the seasons and the lifecycle of the Pharaoh Cicada of North America which produces a swarm only once every 17 years.
